Strange and wonderfull

News from Suffolk:

BEING

A true Relation of a Lamb that was lately yeand at St. Edmonds-bury in the County of Suffolk, with the perfect Resemblance of the high Dresses and Top-knots which Women are usually dres'd with.

19. June. 1690 Licensed according to Order.

AMong the many wonderfull productions of Nature, this monstrous Lamb is very much to be admired; and though the strangeness of what is related in the following Account of it, may cause some doubtfull People to question the Truth of it, yet since it came from those who were Eye-witnesses of it, being Persons of unquestionable Credit, now living in the Town of St. Edmonds-bury in Suffolk, in a Letter to a Person of good Reputation here in London, I think it no crime to publish to the World this Wonder; and to prevent all Suspicion of Forgery, I shall do it in the very words of the said Letter, which are as followeth:

St. Edmonds-bury, June 10th, 1690.

THis Day here was a Lamb brought into the Town, that was yeand upon the Heath, in the perfect Dress of the Ladies high Toppings, with a great thing of Flesh, and upon it Wool, at the top of her Forehead, all frizled and curled, and Streamers stood like Knots; you never saw any thing more perfect in the Dress than it was, that my Sisters were so frighted at the thing they were affraid to wear the Dress.
